The President's Temperature at the Normal Point — Convalescence Al-most Assured—The President Cheer-ful and His Appetite Better.

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
July 16, 7:30 a. m.
My Dear Sir: The afternoon febrile rise, which has been growing less during the past three days, and which reached almost a minimum point yesterday, has entirely disappeared this morning, leaving his pulse ninety and temperature and respiration normal. The daily examination of the wound causes the President much less inconvenience now than formerly, thus COMMANDER S. CASEY, JR., commanding the Quinnebang, reports to the Navy Department that the ship being in all respects showing that his system is in a healthier condition and much better prepared to restand for sea, he left New York on the evening of the 14th for Villefranche, France.

CAPT. A. A. SEMMES, Commander R. L. Phythian and Civil Engineers A. G. Menocal, U. S. G. White and F. C. Prindle have return of his appetite. He is manifesting no little interest in beefsteak and similar viands. Very respectfully,

J. STANLEY BROWN,

Private Secretary.

Temperature at Normal Point. The President continues to improve and is now on the way of convalescence. This morning, for the third consecutive morning, his temperature has fallen to the normal point, with all the other symptoms correspondingly favorable.

The President was shot exactly two weeks ngo to-day and the bulletin issued this morning shows his condition to be better than on any previous day. His appetite is better and his stomach stronger. He is Stronger in Every Way, and as bright and cheerful as could be expected under the circumstance. For break pected under the circumstances. For break-fast this morning the President had a piece of beefsteak and a big piece of toast satu-rated with beef juice. He relished his meal exceedingly. Steady Progress to Convalescence. The first regular bulletin issued this norning was as follows:

EXECUTIVE MANSION,

The President has passed another good The President has passed another good night, and is steadily progressing toward convalescence. Pulse, 90; temperature, 98.5°; respiration, 18.

ROBERT REFERENCE,
In view of the favorable progress.

In view of the favorable progress of the President's case, the surgeons have decided to issue bulletins hereafter only in he morning and evening. On the Sure Road to Recovery.

The President now appears to be on the sure road to recovery. At least, his physicians say so, and they ought to know. He is beginning to look something like himself, and has lost that listless expression and is altogether bright and cheerful. His appetite is an indication of renewed vitality. The wound is getting along nicely. The antiseptic dressing is continued. A dekalsified tube, made of bone, is used. The discharge of pus continues copions and healthy.

was shot. Dr. Tindall states that the shock of the wound throw the President into a state of insensibility, and cites as an instance that while he was lying in the depot a physician, who had just arrived, inquired if the President had vomited, and the Presi-dent himself answered that he had not, whereas the fact was that he had not, whereas the fact was that he had and one of the physicians told him so, showing where the vomit had fallen on his clothing. The President remarked that he didn't remember the occurrence, and his subsequent remarks showed that he didn't know he had been insensible. It was Dr. Tindall who first suggested the use of the police ambulance in removing the President to the Executive Mansion, and the suggestion was no sooner approved by the physicians than he had gone and brought it to the depot. The projectors of the police ambulance never dreamed that it would be used by such a prominent person as the President and the fact of its use on that eventful morning will always make it an object of more than ordinary interest. Guiteau's Philosophy. "If I had another opportunity I would not try to shoot the President," said Guiteau yesterday. "I thought I had an inspira-tion to remove him, but I see I must have been mistaken. I think it is ordained by God that the President shall not be killed, and for that reason I would not it try again. and for that reason I would not it try again if I had a chance. If it were not decreed by God that he should not be killed, how could he be alive now? I held the pistol close to his back, and my hand was as steady as iron. I fired point-blank at him, and nothing but I am a little boy, 11 years old. I can't write very well, but will print you a letter on my little press that my papa bought me to learn on. I am very much interested in the news from Mr. Garfield. I am so glad the news from Mr. Garneld. I am so glad to hear he is getting well. I think it's aw-ful to be shot with a big pistol. Gito is a bad, wicked man. Telegram from the Disciples' Con-vention of Texas. The following was also received:

BONHAM, TEXAS, July 15, 1881. President James A. Garfield, Washington, D. C.: Resolved, That we, the State Convention of Disciples in Texas, now in session, hereby tender to Brother James A. Garrield, a faithful member of the Church of Christ and President of the United States, our heartfelt sympathy in his affliction, and express prayer and hope that, in the good providence of God, he may be restored to his usual health and enabled to fill that large sphere of usefulness to which he has been called by his ulness to which he has been called by his fellow-countrymen.

A dispatch has been received from Gov. Eli H. Murray, of Utab, saying: "God pre-serve the President and bless Mrs. Garfield and our country."

The President's Medical Attendants
A report has been circulated that there has been another unpleasantness among the doctors at the White House; this time between the different schools of medicine, the allopaths and the homeopaths. The four physicians who are in charge of the President's case are allopaths of the strictest sect. Gen. Garfield is himself an allopath, with, it is said, some leanings toward homeopathy. Mrs. Garfield is a very pronounced homeopathist and a disbeliever in the allopathic treatment. Mrs. Edson, her own physician and the physician of her children, is a homeopath, as is Dr. Boynton, her cousin, now a member of the President's household, and a consulting physician in the President's case.

The story was that these doctors disagreed The President's Medical Attendants

The story was that these doctors disagreed as to treatment. Dr. Bliss, however, denies with emphasis the statement that any professional antagonism has arisen. "This charge is entirely baseless," said Dr. Bliss yesterday afternoon. "Dr. Boynton has been treated uniformilly with the greatest courtesy, and the best of feeling prevails."

Dr. Reyburn, in conversation last night, being asked whether the deeper parts of the wound may not have already begun to heal, Dr. Reyburn said: "Such might be the case. The sides of the wound in the interior of the body might be pressed together so as to adhere, and thus heal without any supparation. The present distribution of the ballot was section of the ballot was gether so as to adhere, and thus heal without any supparation. The sides of the wound in the interior of the body might be pressed together so as to adhere, and thus heal without any supparation. The present discharge comes, so far as we can judge, from that part of the body lying between the mouth of the wound and the ribs." Upon being askel what he thought had taken place in the interior of the body at the point pierced by the bullet. Dr. Reyburn said: "We cannot tell with certainty. The wound may perhaps have healed already behind the bullet, leaving it there imprisoned. All we know is that the local inflammation which was apparent in the hepatic region a week ago has almost entirely disappeared, and this is a almost entirely disappeared, and this is a favorable indication. Furthermore, there must have been a large effusion of blood in the interior of the body after the ball entered, and this has all been reabsorbed. These facts, together with the steady decline in the intensity of the fever, go to show that nature is carrying on her work of show that nature is carrying on her work of readjustment and repair in the interior of the body as successfully as in the more superficial parts of the wound, which are accessible to observation." In conclusion, Dr. Reyburn said: "The President has not a single unfavorable symptom. We not only hope for his recovery, but are now beginning to be sanguine of it."

The Official Bulletin to the Consult-

The following dispatch was sent by the attending surgeons to the two consulting surgeons this afternoon:

The bulletin issued at 7 o'clock last evening was as follows:

THE REGISTER OF WILLS.

Opinions of Lawyers as to the Points in Dispute. The readers of The Critic will recollect that there is a conflict between Col. Amos Webster, the Register of Wills, and Mr. H. J. Ramsdell, appointed on July 2 as his successor. Colonel Webster makes the point that under the law of Maryland, which he claims is in force in this District, his office is a life toward or during recol behavior. is a life tenure, or during good behavior. The opinions of some of the prominent law-yers of the District relative to the matter ute must be of interest to the gen-The Nestor of the Bar, Hon. Joseph H.

'I have formed no decided opinion on the subject, for I have had no time to examine it. To this time my impression was very clear that under the constitution of the State of Maryland at the time of the cession of this District and the legislation of Congress, that the office of Register of Wills in the District was, as it then certainly was in Maryland, an office during good behavior.

"There is no specific legislation by Congress touching the tenure of that office, and the only question which can arise is under section 1768 of the Revised Code, which gives the President power to suspend any civil officer appointed by the President and Senate—except the judges of the courts of the United States. Congress has exclusive legislation over this District, and may abolish the office of Register of Wills, as they may repeal laws creating courts for it, and organize a new system. But it seems to me that must be done by direct legisla-tion, and not by implication. My present impression is that the life tenure of the Register of Wills cannet by the terms of this section be converted into an office at the will of the President, and that it is protected by general rules of construction, and is within the spirit of the exception con-tained in that section. "Still the importance of the office renders it very desirable that matters shall rest as they are until the chief justice shall approve the bond of the newly appointed Register."

Mr. S. T. Thomas said that he did not think the position taken by Register Webster tenable.

Mr. L. G. Hine said that he thinks the President has the power to remove, but inasmuch as Colonel Webster has proved himself a competent and efficient officer he ought not to be removed.
